

Churchill Lauds Success Third Canadian Loan

OTTAWA, Nov. 18.—(CP)—Prime Minister Churchill in a message made public today sent his warmest congratulations to the Third Victory Loan campaign in which a $750,000,000 loan has been heavily oversubscribed.

The message, which came to Prime Minister Mackenzie King, followed his hearing of the success of the Canadian Third Victory Loan and of the great response which the Canadian people have made. I send them through you my warmest congratulations.

Hitler has good reason to know the might of Canada's armed forces of her ships and planes and weapons of war. Her sailors, soldiers and airmen have answered every call in all parts of the world. Her fighters in shipyards and munition factories have delivered to us the weapons of their full measure.

From the forests and rivers come many resources on which the United Nations depend in their battle for freedom.

Canada's unbending will to share to the full the burden and sacrifices of the war is manifest. She has accepted the challenge of the threats all freedom-loving peoples alike and her people have been proud of their readiness to make every contribution to victory which victory demands.

R.A.F. Bombers Pound Turin in Heavy Assault

LONDON, Nov. 18.—(CP)—R.A.F. bombers pounded Turin last night in the fifth big raid on Italian war centres during the war, it was authoritatively announced today.

Turin is an airplane, motor car and machine producing city on the Po. The chief seat of industry in Italy. It was raided last by the R.A.F. twice in succession, Oct. 22 and 23.

The royal arsenal, the Fiat engine works and a branch of the Fiat engine works are among military targets of the city, which have been attacked 20 times during the war.

150-MILE TRIP

The raid by home-based bombers entailed another 150-mile round trip and two crossings of the Alps.

In the four previous raids of November, the target was Genoa, northern Italian naval base and industrial port which has a key part in supplying the Axis forces in the French North African campaign.

Genoa, before announced as the latest raid, air-raid alarms in Genoa and Lussane, Switzerland, indicated the R.A.F. was abroad. Swiss anti-aircraft guns were in action.

"GOOD RESULTS"

The air ministry announced the R.A.F. bombers accomplished "good results" at Turin without the loss of one plane.

Last night aircraft of the bomber command attacked the Fiat works and other targets at Turin. The sky over northern Italy was lit up as the crews report good results. None of our aircraft is missing," the communique said.

Alberta Gave Warning About Coal Shortage

obtain men who have had some experience in mine work but who are not fully qualified miners. This action was necessary to provide much needed labor.

WARNED LAST MAY

Mr. Tanner said Thursday that Dominion selective service officials had been warned last May that it would be inadvisable to permit men to leave their civilian jobs in work in war industries. Despite this warning, many miners had been allowed to leave their jobs.

Early last summer Premier Wilton Franks said that the residents of Alberta to lay their hands on coal during the winter. He stated that if the winter was a danger of a labor shortage in the coal mines, the government would be forced to order their coal early might be unable to purchase it when the cold weather arrived.

MAJOR DEMANDS ACTION

Demands were made late Wednesday by Mayor John W. Fry to National Selective Service officials at Ottawa. He said that the mines in Edmonton and district to the south were suffering from a shortage of men.

Local selective service officials do not appear to have the power to allocate miners to work in the mines if they are employed in other occupations.

It was then that American plane manufacturers began to install turbines on the Forerunners and to add guns and armor. In time they transformed the Forerunners into formidable bombers.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 19.—(BUP)—Willie Peck, the "Hartford Hurricane," left late Wednesday for New York where Friday night he hopes to wrest the featherweight crown from ancient Chalky Wright. His departure signals the beginning of the great migration of some 7,000 Connecticut fans toward Madison Square Garden.

Because of the gas and rubber situation and heavy traffic on the New Haven railroad, the fans must move into New York gradually, with the vanguard leading off yesterday.

Booming Hartford takes its featherweight seriously, and particularly in the Italian who fights under the name of Willie Peck. He battles so well that he is riding a string of 30 straight victories and is such a menacing contender that he is favored 9 to 5 to beat the 20-year-old Los Angeles Negro.

FEATHERWEIGHT CRADLE

HARTFORD, swarming with defense workers, is the nation's No. 1 featherweight city, having provided two 125-pound kings, Louis "Kid" Kaplan and Bat Battalino. Moreover, it is the metropolis in which the original Young Corbett upset "Terrible Terry" McGovern and took his life away on a quick knockout last in 1901.

Because of the tremendous enthusiasm for 20-year-old Wright in this area, Frank S. Cooke, boxing commissioner for the State of Connecticut, will launch the National Boxing Association to recognize Peck as undisputed champion of the world if he ticks Wright.

Wright is recognized as 125-pound ruler only by New York and the states that the NBA insists that Pittsburgh Jackie Wilson is champion. Connected to a member of the NBA, Commissioner Cooke does the feather division shows quite clearly that Wright claims that the crowd are much more than Wilson's. President Abe Greene of the NBA is not expected to agree with Cooke.

IN GOOD SHAPE

PECK completed boxing preparations Tuesday with six rounds of sparring in which he suffered a mouse under his left eye. Because of this purple lump, Trainer Bill Gore cancelled yesterday's scheduled feather-tossing and had the night.

Too Many Comebacks

Fighters Never Appear To Know When They're Through

By HARRY GRAYSON

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Because it is improperly supervised, the fight game is a ugly racket of busted backs, scarred eyes and 50 punch drunk has-beens for every Conn. Gene Tunney among the alumni.

Someone should tell them when they're washed up, they do, yet, with rare exceptions, they are permitted by boxing commissions and promoters to come back amid apocryphal tears and much waiting and usually accomplish their purpose of paying off the mortgage.

Prize fighter and Henry Armstrong, a pair of former greats, tangled in San Francisco the other night. Each is fighting with a full share of the marks of the trade, and then some.

Armstrong, who once held three world championships, retired early last year after being knocked out by Zivie in an attempt to regain the welterweight weight he lost to the Pittsburgh Crazies three months previously.

ARMSTRONG EXCEPTION

Armstrong took a terrific pasting, especially around the eyes. His manager, the late Eddie Mead, insisted upon the stout-hearted Negro hanging up his gloves. Mead died of a heart attack shortly after Armstrong announced his return to the wars, but not until he had done everything he could to stop it. An old line handler, Mead had some sense.

But here is Armstrong back again—winner of eight out of nine fights—Victoriano in a "revenge" match with Zivie.

Such matches are not precisely a product of the times due to the first rank of fighters being in the armed forces. There have been similar matches since Jack Broughton drew up the first set of rules.

TOLD PASTOR TO QUIT

It is refreshing, therefore, to hear that James J. Johnston, another old-time pilot, advised Bob Pastor to quit.

Pastor said Jimmy Johnston who he believed he could make in the next couple of months. Johnston guessed $10,000 or $15,000.

"Oh, Get me one more fight and then I'll quit," said Pastor.

"No," replied Johnston. "If you want to retire, do it now. The time to quit is when you first think of quitting. I've seen many a fighter badly hurt in making 'just one more fight'."

Eddie Mead, who knew Henry Armstrong best, realized early last year that it was dangerous for him to go on. Zivie is merely playing out the string.

A visit to any gymnasium or a stroll along Jacobs Beach will show Private Zivie and Henry Armstrong, simple samples of fighters who didn't know when they had enough.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Nov. 19.—(CP Cable)—Canadian troops stationed in this colony are well supplied with athletic facilities, and are taking part in football, baseball, field hockey, soccer and basketball. In addition, they have a legacy left by the Winnipeg Grenadiers: the Maple Leaf Club for their recreational facilities. It is believed the club will be extended to give winter entertainment for the new Canadian arrivals.

The Winnipeg Grenadiers were transferred from Bermuda and took part in the defense of Hong Kong against the Japanese before it was captured in December, 1941. After the Grenadiers left, the United States Embassy in London.

Pleasure Driving Out?

Gas Rationing Hits Miami Horse, Dog Track Operators

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Confusion over gasoline rationing arose yesterday to plague Miami horse and dog track operators, already facing the severe headaches of trying to conduct race meetings in wartime.

On the heels of an announcement that the weekly "A" card quota in Florida will be reduced to three gallons next Sunday, the Daily Commerce (Miami) rationing chief, James A. Dixon, issued a statement saying, "All pleasure driving is simply out."

"Motorists who use their cars to reach golf courses, ball games, race tracks or for pleasure of any sort will be risking the loss of their ration books," he said.

Later, however, Dixon declared that he based his announcement on newspaper quotations of the Florida rationing board, and added that he would put no drastic regulation effect until he gets official word to do so.

Since both Miami horse tracks are situated miles from town and lack of adequate bus service, the first announcement came like a body blow.

MONTREAL, Nov. 19.—(CP)—Two Quebec Senior Hockey League games ended in stalemates here Wednesday night as Canadiens and Montreal Army fought to a 2-2 tie after the Quebec Aces, Montreal R.C.A.F. curtain-raiser, ended in a 4-4 draw.

The single point allowed Army to move into a second-place tie with Ottawa Commandos, three points behind Cornwall Army, while R.C.A.F. remained in the cellar but pulled Montreal Royals down with them.

THE WORK

By JOHN COLLINGWOOD READE

The African campaign is still a long way from its triumphant conclusion. It is easy enough to see that the United Nations intend and now they are setting about it. But the enemy will hold a strong hand with a few tricks left in it. There have been rumors that Rommel is in Tunisia. This is more than probable, for he will certainly hold command of all Axis forces in Africa, and will not take a beating lying down. Referring to the recent battle in Egypt, the German commander is reported to have said: "Like Napoleon, I have lost my equipment, but there will be no Waterloo." The odds are against him, and we have reason to hope that the parallel which Rommel himself has suggested will hold to the end.

The enemy is looking to time and distance as his friends in this present crisis of his fortunes. The progress of the English Army has been impeded by lengthening lines of communication and the necessity for mopping up isolated Axis forces, contaminating water holes, and removing enemy mines. Moreover, time is required to take over and repair damaged enemy air bases and bring the fighters and medium bombers up to advanced establishments properly equipped with repair and fueling facilities, so that they can resume an uninterrupted attack on the retreating German columns.

STAND IN SALT MARSHES. Already, the remnants of Rommel's Africa Corps have been joined to the North African theatre of war, and we may expect that the entire submarine, torpedo boat and battle fleets of Italy will be used in conjunction with German and Italian aircraft to force a passage for men and supplies from Sicily.

From now on, Italy will become a sort of base through which German troops and equipment will be joined to the North African theatre of war, and we may expect that the entire submarine, torpedo boat and battle fleets of Italy will be used in conjunction with German and Italian aircraft to force a passage for men and supplies from Sicily.

Rehabilitation Program Needed to Meet Problem

Premier Abernath Avers

Throwing machines away after the war in order to get returned men jobs is no solution to the post-war rehabilitation problem; society owes a debt to members of the armed forces who are fighting for freedom, and this debt can only be paid by providing them with a decent standard of living.

These points were stressed by Premier William Abernath in a statement issued Thursday outlining a comprehensive program for the rehabilitation of soldiers, sailors, airmen, members of the ship-building industry have all increased output 300 per cent since 1939, using only one-tenth of the manpower engaged in that year.

POST-WAR PROGRAM. The solution to the labor replacement problem was the adoption of a program of assistance for returned men whose places are being taken by the machine, the premier declared.

His statement follows: There is a good old song that comes to my mind just now, when I think of the men who are returning home. "We used to sing it during the war, when Johnny was marching home. We used to sing it during the war, when Johnny was marching home. We used to sing it during the war, when Johnny was marching home."

DO SOMETHING. Well, we all had good times after this war if we get busy and do something about it now. If we prepare in the present to meet the problems which will confront us when the war is over, we can avoid the trouble which will confront us when the war is over.

Isn't it perfectly obvious that two of the chief problems which we face after the war are the problems of our returned veterans, our farmers or primary producers, and our industrial workers? These are the problems which we face after the war.

What I fear is that these great problems will all fall upon us suddenly, like a bomb, and we will be unable to deal with them. We must be prepared to meet them when they come.

REHABILITATION. Well now, let us start our work by considering the first problem of that of rehabilitating and providing for our returned veterans. These are the men and women of our fighting forces who have been drawn from every branch of industry, of commerce and of professional life.

DEBT TO HEROES. It is perfectly clear, therefore, that the debt which we owe to our fighting forces is more important than any other debt claim arising out of this war. The debt which we owe to our fighting forces is more important than any other debt claim arising out of this war.

It is perfectly clear, therefore, that the debt which we owe to our fighting forces is more important than any other debt claim arising out of this war. The debt which we owe to our fighting forces is more important than any other debt claim arising out of this war.

These men are risking their lives daily in order to win for us security. Does that not entitle them to spend the rest of their lives in the security which they have won? We are risking everything? I think so.

MONEY ANGE. "Money, money, money," I will be asked. "Where is the money coming from? Where will we get the money to pay the interest and allowances for three years to our armed forces and the merchant marine?" Look, industry and business should surely hesitate to ask me to do this. I have not yet allowed myself to decide whether we are ready to pay full pay and allowances for more than three years?

If we could pay this during the past three years, it would mean the production of billions of dollars in new money. This is the money which the Nazis, who should not have done this, would continue to pay our fighting forces for the next three years, when our industries will have changed from war time to peace time production at an abundance of goods for our own use.

I have no hesitation in asserting most emphatically that if we use the proper method of financing, we will be able to fulfill our obligation to those who have risked all to save us from totalitarianism. We will be able to do this without financial debt burdens such as we are piling up at the present.

But that isn't all. What about the men who have risked their lives in the service of our country? Should we not be able to provide for them in the same way? Should we not be able to provide for them in the same way?

Remember, production was never intended as a means of providing for the needs of the world. Production is to provide a living, or if you like, the removal of poverty from the midst of plenty.

66 Divisions Of Italo Army Are Wiped Out

LONDON, Nov. 10.—(CP)—Sixty-six Italian divisions, comprising about 594,000 men, have been destroyed in Africa and Albania since Mussolini entered the war, a military commentator said today.

He explained that a division, which in the Italian army averages about 9,000 men, is considered destroyed in a military sense when it is so severely mauled it must be regrouped or reformed.

Some of Italy's 20 white and 27 native African divisions listed as destroyed were completely wiped out.

The commentator grouped Italy's losses as follows: a metropolitan campaign—11 metropolitan divisions.

East African campaign (Ethiopia, Somalia)—12 metropolitan and 25 native African divisions.

North African campaign—16 metropolitan and two native African divisions.

Italian losses in Russia were not calculated, but it is known that 10 Italian divisions are operating there.

Great Air Raids Threatening Axis

LONDON, Nov. 10.—(CP)—Germany, Italy and their bases in occupied countries are threatened by aerial assault from all directions in the coming months, an assault which may outstrip the heavy blows delivered by the R.A.F. from one direction during the past summer, unofficial observers noted today.

To meet the threat, these observers said, the German air force will be compelled to spread itself thin.

These sources estimate the German air strength at about 5,000 first-line combat planes, Italian at about 2,000.

With these planes the Axis must defend not only the long front from the Caucasus to Leningrad in Russia, the Norwegian coast where large Axis forces have been based to strike at Russian-bound convoys, the German home front, and the Libyan desert, but must also now face a new threat from Northwest Africa.

Huns Fearful of Allied Successes

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP)—John G. Winant, United States ambassador to Britain, said last night that "hard work of many silent people" made possible the North Africa campaign and the naval victory off the Solomons.

Winant said in a broadcast from London that these two recent Allied successes, "put cold fear into the hearts of the German general staff and revived in the minds of the elder generals the memory of their crumbling on the German front in 1918."

Speaking of the gigantic task undertaken in the North African landing, Winant told of a staff conference room in London:

"You could not tell which were British and which were Americans. You were only aware of a sense of unity and comradeship in the planning of the greatest modern invasions ever undertaken in the annals of military history."

Herbert Morrison, British minister of home security, also speaking from London, scoffed at charges of "imperialism" against Britain, and pointed to the British rescue of Ethiopia and the subsequent aid given to that country by Britain which "left them to run their own country as soon as possible."

Japs Prepare Yunnan Attack

CHUNGKING, Nov. 10.—(AP)—A Chinese army spokesman said today there were indications the Japanese were preparing to drive into Yunnan province, southwest China, from French Indo-China.

This thrust, he said, would be coordinated with one from the section of Yunnan province adjacent to Burma which the Japanese occupied last spring. They have been stationary there since May.

The spokesman said the Japanese recently secretly increased their strength in Yunnan by 12,000 men, bringing the total to 20,000 and at the same time bolstered their air forces at Wanting, one of their air fields in the occupied border region.

The spokesman added that the Japanese had assembled landing craft, including collapsible rubber boats, for crossing the turbulent waters of the Salween River as the first step of the drive, the objectives of which would be the capture of Kunming and the possible disruption of air services between India and China.

No Curtailment Of Automobiles On Election Day

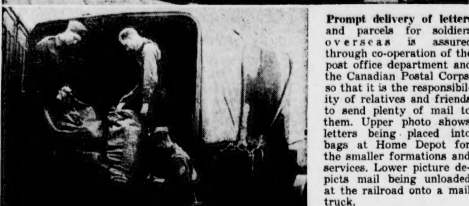

OTTAWA, Nov. 10.—(CP)—As Ottawa representative of the Ontario Controller G. R. Cottrell said last night there will be no specific curtailment of the use of automobiles during election time, other than provided for under existing regulations.

Rationing of gasoline already places no onerous limitations on use of cars but the regulations make no special provisions governing use of cars in connection with elections.

The Regina United Labor Association said Tuesday it had received notification from the Dominion oil controller that he was considering curtailing use of cars on election day.

Canadians Are Urged to Send Letters to Troops

Prompt delivery of letters and parcels for soldiers overseas is assured through co-operation of the post office department and the Canadian Postal Corps, so that it is the responsibility of relatives and friends to send plenty of mail to them. Upper photo shows letters being placed into bags at Home Depot for the smaller formations and services. Lower picture depicts mail being unloaded at the railroad onto a mail truck.

Virginia Christine—a natural blonde of pleasing proportions—she is five feet four inches in height and weighs one hundred and fifteen pounds—was born twenty-two years ago in Stanton, Iowa. Her father and mother were both concert singers who toured the country in Chautauque circuits. When Virginia was eight her father died and all her early education was directed toward becoming a concert pianist. She entered Mediapolis high school in Iowa and revealed dramatic talent. It was her success in a nation-wide reading contest sponsored by the National Forensic League that created the attention of movie scouts and won her the long term Warner contract. She appears in "Background Danger."

Algiers Surrenders To Attacking U.S. Troops

Algiers, throbbing hub of the French colonial empire, surrendered to attacking American troops after a few hours of resistance. The city was occupied in accordance with an "armistice" accepted by the French garrison. The harbor and modern buildings of the French base are shown here.

Greeting For A Canadian Sailor After Rescue At Sea

Cupid Smiles On Second Effort

For the second time in recent months, First-Class Stoker Edward Karroll of the Royal Canadian Navy has swung his helm hard a-port in the direction of marital bliss. At a quiet ceremony in Toronto, the quiet-spoken young tar who hails from Saskatchewan took as his bride pretty young Kathleen Sinclair. They met while he was in training some months ago. Stoker Karroll struck bad weather on his first venture. He had his marriage license and wedding bells were all ready to chime when he was suddenly recalled for duty.

CHAPTER XXVIII
"Oh, hurry, everybody, hurry!" The dinner table—I had everything set. The chairs—my clothes—Oh, my! Hilda was so impatient but she was working furiously now. Automatically the others pitched in. The living room looked like a wreck one moment and looked neat again the next. In spite of Hilda and Duane's fight with the two detectives, things hadn't been broken. The detective called Edward over to the window and peered out.
"So that's them, eh?" he said.
"I know them too. By gosh, I don't get it." Duane Hogan began. "Do you mean to tell me, Nancy or Hilda, that you—"

Nancy looked desperate. "I tell you we haven't time to talk now. Duane, dump those clothes back in the closet. And Scout's toys I've got to get an apron on and look calm! Don't you understand?"
"But how can—"
The detective spoke again. "Mrs. Hilda's right. Help her go through with it. We got to have proof. Evidence, see?"
"Yes, Oh, Duane— you and Hilda. Come with me!"

One of the detectives felt back through the darkness and touched Hilda in warning to be still. But Duane didn't know that.
"Hilda," said he, whispering over to him, right at her cheek. "You had the courage— to come up here alone! To try—"
"Sh-h-h-h," the detective ventured, just in time.
All four of the people here in the closet were suddenly tense again. Nancy was opening her front door. "Hello," they heard Nancy say, flat tone. "Come in!"
There was quite a long pause. Then in the closet could almost see the new arrivals taking in the living room, so vivid was the drama in their minds.
"What about it?" they heard a man's voice ask. "Everything jake?"
"You wanted to see for yourself," Nancy reminded them.
Two men slowly entered her room and she closed the door, careful to conceal the lock that Duane Hogan had broken. Hilda recognized the voice of the man. It was the same brassy gent who had first called.

"Did you bring the money?" Nancy was asking him now.
"New mind about the money? We got it, all right. We want to see you take it at first. We don't intend to get ripped this time."
"Miller took the money first, then didn't fix the game. You better stick by us, see, and you'll have everything jake. Get me? You got what I take. Like I told you, like you myself."
"The you?"
"Sure-ee, kid? You got looks. Know what I mean? Told you, didn't I, Hilda?"
"You wasn't lying," said the man Hilda.
"Mmmmm."
That was Nancy being personably appraised again. Hilda knew. Left Duane Hogan's muscles tighten.

"Gosh, this over, you stick with the boys downtown, kid," Hilda put in. "Now what's the lay-out here?"
The other one explained. "We stay in that closet. She gets the two football punks up here. Hogan and Duane, the friends. She gives 'em the sleep pills. Makes 'em jake. We can tell in 20 minutes. She sends 'em out to an errand. We give her the grand, and then we溜. Nobody seen us up here, nobody'll see us leave. That's the whole ticket, ain't it?"
"That's what you said," Nancy answered.
Hilda felt a stirring in front of her. She thought she heard the hammer click on a gun.
"Open the door," the detective murmured to the other. "We got evidence enough!"
"To be Continued"

McKenney On Bridge
By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY
After the war I am sure we will see a lot more mid-western and western women participating in the major bridge events of the country—and if they do, I predict that they will win a fair share of the trophies, as they are really fine tournament players. Mrs. Helen Henker and Mrs. Stella MacMillan of Chicago won the All-American women's fair event this year. Here is a pleasing hand that confronted them during the tournament.

With North and South vulnerable, East and West could afford to be set three tricks doubled to save the spade game. Most of the East-West pairs did make a sacrifice bid of five hearts and most of the North-West pairs doubled. Mrs. Melander and Mrs. MacMillan, with the North-South cards, reached the most difficult of contracts, five of a major suit not bid as a sacrifice. Refusing to let East and West steal the hand, these ladies bid the exact limit of their cards. The contract was made easily as dummy could ruff out both of South's losing clubs.

Nancy could feel the utter strangeness here. For the second time in 15 minutes she was in the closet, this time not with two men. She could sense their presence even if she could see nothing. She could hear Nancy tripping around outside, obviously in last-second arranging of details. Her own thumping pulse was likely to give everything away. Hilda felt. All at once, then, everything else went still.

Nancy could be heard no more. The detective named Ed was still breathing a little heavily from his exertion with Duane. But Duane himself, backed against the closet wall, was like a man of iron. Slowly, surprisingly—and delightfully—Hilda realized that Duane's arm was completely around her. She could feel the rise and ebb of his own slow breathing as he held her to his side. His muscles were tense. A century dragged by and yet actually have been two minutes—and then she felt Duane stirring.

"You all right?" he whispered, right at her ear.
For answer she squeezed back on the hand that held her.
"I couldn't have stood it," he whispered, "if you hadn't been. If any harm had come to you."
Good old Duane! The best friend a girl ever had.
"Yes, Duane?"
"Then—I don't hear them yet!"
"No."
"I want to say—Hilda—it seems to me the time has come for me to say what I've wanted to say. I have to ask you something."

"Nancy was innocent, Duane. Don't you understand? She was innocent—and then she felt Duane's arm around her. She was trying to do anything mean. Instead, she was—"
"I wasn't talking about Nancy?"
"Yes!"
Nancy's footsteps again were tripping nervously around outside.
